LEGISLATURE ENTERS LAST LAP OF SESSION

Richmond, Va.- The 1956-57 public school policy of segregation remained today one of the major unanswered questions of the regular session of the General Assembly.

With much of Governor Stanley's major legislation already disposed of, attention turned anew to the school situation as a large group of House members, led by Speaker E. Blackburn Moore, of Berryville, drafted a resolution to declare state policy for continued segregation during the next school year.

In the background were the recommendations of the Governor's Commission on Public Education, the State Constitutional Convention election of February 21, and its scheduled meeting on March 5 to amend Section 141 so that public funds may be used for private tuition grants—if the segregation problem prompts such action.

Advocates of the 1956-57 segregation resolution maintain there is not time now, and after the Constitutional Convention, to enact the proper legislation to be operative for the next school session, and local school boards should be advised the State's policy is to continue separate schools.

Others argue the voters, when they authorized on January 9 the calling of the Constitutional Convention, were assured that legislation would follow promptly in keeping with the recommendations of the Commission on Public Education. The issue is one that bids fair to enliven the last weeks of the session.

The House Appropriations Committee, after finding several million dollars additional in higher estimates of collections and in some revisions of appropriations, proceeded to complete its work on the budget this week. This means, in all probability, the money measure will come to the floor for debate and final House vote by Tuesday or Wednesday of next week.

Embarrassing Moment

Sioux Falls, S. D.- It was a most embarrassing moment for everybody recently when Curtis Schoon, Sioux Falls featherweight took off his robe for his Golden Gloves boxing match. Schoon had forgotten to put on his boxing trunks. Schoon lost the bout but won the sportsmanship trophy.

WATCHDOG IS CAT

Lake Texoma, Tex. A barge owner adopted a stray cat and taught it to eat minnows but to leave other fish alone. The cat, on the alert, makes sure that other prowling animals do the same.

Ranked 88th For 1955 Road Death Toll

Appomattox County had a deplorable rank of 88th among the 98 counties of Virginia in 1955 rural traffic deaths. This compared with a rank of 14th for 1954.

The final tabulations on 1955 highway deaths were released this week by Col. C. W. Woodson, Jr., Superintendent of State Police and Chairman of the Governor's Highway Safety Committee.

Appomattox County had 6 deaths for a rate of 16.5, and rank of 88. In 1954, there had been 1 death, a rate of 2.7, and rank of 14.

Five counties, Craig, Highland, King and Queen, King William and Mathews, experienced no deaths, as did the cities of Winchester and Fredericksburg. For Craig and Highland, this was the second consecutive year.

Fifty counties showed increases in deaths, while 29 bettered their previous records and 19 saw the same number as 1954. The 1955 total fo rthe state stood at 878, a marked increase over the 810 of 1954.

Largest decreases were in Nansemond, (25-11) and Prince George (12-6). Notable increases occurred in Botetourt (6-20), UrinceaAnne (21-31), Northampton 4-13), and Shenadoah (2-11).

There were 12,302 people injured slightly and 15,956 severely. Property and economic losses total ed $83,416,000. Traffic volumes rose 6.2 per cent.

Abbitt Saves 1,462 Acres Of Tobacco Allotment for Farmers

Washington.- Reresentative Watkins M. Abbitt, (D.-Va.) said today that the favorable congressional action on his bill restoring a 15% acreage allotment on dark-fired and dark air-cured tobacco will mean more than $800,000 to the economy of the dark-fired tobacco area of Virginia.

The Fourth District Congressman said he was "delighted" at the quick action he was able to obtain from Congress to restore the cut authorized last year by the Department of Agriculture for the 1956 crop.

Passage last Thursday by both the House and Senate in a near-record time will enable growers to know exactly how much tobacco they can plant in plenty of time for the new season.

"It was essential," Abbitt said, "that we get favorable action and that we get it fast. I was, therefore, pleased that we received cooperation all the way along the line and I believe our farmers will be highly satisfied with the result."

The restoration will bring Virginia's dark-fired tobacco acreage to 9,744 acres — located in Central and Southside Virginia. The Abbitt bill restored 1,462 acres which were cut off last year and will mean a great deal to the farm economy in that section.

Abbitt pointed out that there is not a surplus of Virginia dark-fired tobacco and stressed the fact that there is a great need for additional acres to meet the demands and the needs in this country and for export.

In his peech in the House on Thursday when he led the debate on the bill, Abbitt pointed out that he had just received a letter from the Astra Tobacco Corporation of New York saying that they had purchased every pile of dark-fired wrapper available and were unable to secure a sufficient quantity to meet the demands of the Austrian Tobacco Monopoly and its affiliated factory in Munich, Germany. He added that this one company had even been forced to look for wrapper substitutes in other countries, finally finding some in Nyasaland, South Africa.

"This is but one instance of the need for an increase in the allotment of Type 21 Virginia dark-fired tobacco," Abbitt told the House.

Abbitt introduced the bill on February 7 and it was reported by the Tobacco Subcommittee of the House Agriculture Committee the same day. Abbitt is chairman of the subcommittee. The next day it was taken up at a special meeting of the full House Agriculture Committee and reported to the House. Passage of the bill first by the House and then by the Senate on the 16th thus gave favorable congressional action within a week, which is highly unusual in the drawn-out congressional process. Abbitt said he expected the bill to become law within the next few days.

Representative Abbitt, as chairman of the Tobacco Subcommittee, has moved fast in two successive years on various tobacco problems. Last year his committee dealt with problems in the burley field and has also been surveying problems relating to other kinds of tobacco in this session.

Hearings were held 10 days ago by his subcommittee in Nashville, North Carolina, into the questions involved in allotment cuts in the flue-cured tobacco.
